A Live Issue In a Live City.

Live Louisville must meet the same issue in solving its transportation problem that other live cities have met.

That issue is:

Efficient service with a fluctuating fare Or fluctuating service with a fixed fare.

The live citizens of 539 other live cities have decided that a fixed fare is a relic of the past, that the kind of service they get is the vital thing in their street car problem, and that, to get this service, the fare must be periodically revised.

Believing in the policy of "live and let live," these live cities have changed fares to meet changed costs of maintenance and operation.

They accepted higher fares for their street car riding, because they recognized the fact that increased revenue is necessary to preserve a service as vital to their community as blood circulation is to the human body.

They decided the issue in the light of their own best interests.

Live public sentiment everywhere knows that adequate service demands an adequate fare.

This is the issue Live Louisville must meet.

JAMES P. BARNES. President Louisville Railway Company.

SOUTH'S BAD RECORD.

During 1920 there were sixty-one lynchings in the United States, of which fifty-two were in the South and nine in the North and West. States maintaining the bad rec-The States maintaining the bad record for the South are Texas with ten, Georgia nine, Alabama seven, Florida seven, Mississippi seven and Georgia nine lynchings. These States can also boast greatest hostility to immigration and Catholic doctrine. Only one case marred Kentucky's record. In the North officers of the law prevented ten lynchings and in the South the number reached forty-six. The colored victims totaled fifty-three and the whites eight.
